Principles and Prediction

John couldn't believe his eyes as he tried to shield himself from the bullet racing toward him. He told himself it had to be a dream but it wasn't. It was just the beginning of the hardship and humiliation that his fellow soldiers would inflict upon him. When an unexpected personal attack (in the Columbia Recruiting Battalion!) with duty in the Charleston South Carolina Army Recruiting Company Oct 1997 to Feb 2001) threatened John's military career, he had to draw upon a reservoir of undiscovered strength that his past experiences had instilled in him. John's story is the story of an American soldier who refuses to accept defeat, never give up, and will journey to hell and back in order to fight for the one thing his enemies are determined to destroy-his honor.

This is a collection of articles addressing the issue of underspecification in phonological representations (Daniel Dinnsen, Joseph Stemberger, Janet Bing, Gregory Iverson). In the other two papers, questions of borrowing are discussed, in Nancy Stenson's contribution from a synchronic perspective, and in Gunter Schaarsmidt's paper from a historical one. The volume is completed by a subject index and a language index.

Topics in Mathematical Physics, General Relativity, and Cosmology in Honor of Jerzy Plebański

One of modern science's most famous and controversial figures, Jerzy Plebański was an outstanding theoretical physicist and an author of many intriguing discoveries in general relativity and quantum theory. Known for his exceptional analytic skills, his innovative ideas, and his ability to communicate complex concepts in an accessible manner, Plebański was dedicated to both science and art, producing numerous handwritten articles—reminiscent of his calligraphy—as well as a collection of oil paintings. As a collaborator but also an antagonist of Leopold Infeld's (a coauthor of Albert Einstein's), Plebański is recognized as designing the "heavenly" and "hyper-heavenly" equations, for introducing new variables to describe the gravitational field, for the exact solutions in Einstein's gravity and in quantum theory, for his classification of the tensor of matter, for some outstanding results in nonlinear electrodynamics, and for analyzing general relativity with continuous modes, as well as for his work on the history of science and art. He was dedicated to both science and art, producing innumerable handwritten articles—reminiscent of his calligraphy—material he used in his collaborative work with Leopold Infeld. In a timely contribution to current debates over the psychology of boys and the construction of their social lives, On My Honor explores the folk culture of the Boy Scouts of America during a summer encampment in California's Sierra Nevada. Drawing on more than twenty years of research and extensive visits and interviews with members of the troop, Mechling uncovers the key rituals and play events through which the Boy Scouts shape boys into men. He describes the campfire songs, initiation rites, games, and activities that are used to mold the Scouts into responsible adults. The themes of honor and character alternate in this new study as we witness troop leaders offering examples in structure, discipline, and guidance, and teaching scouts the difficult balance between freedom and self-control. What results is a probing look into the inner lives of boys in our culture and their rocky transition into manhood. On My Honor provides a provocative, sometimes shocking, account of boys coming to grips with their sexual desires, their innate aggression, and their inclination toward peer pressure and violence, and their social acculturation. On My Honor ultimately shows how the Boy Scouts of America continues to edify and mentor young men against the backdrop of controversies over freedom of religious expression, homosexuality, and the proposed inclusion of female members. While the organization's bureaucracy has taken an unyielding stance against gay men and atheists, real-life Scouts are often more open to plurality than we might assume. In their embrace of tolerance, acceptance, and understanding, troop leaders at the local level have the power to shape boys into emotionally mature men.

Papers in Honor of Josiah Royce on His Sixtieth Birthday

The volume is divided into four sections: typology, syntax, discourse, and phonology. Two of the typology papers study the structure and organization of category systems (Joseph Greenberg, Linda Schwartz); the third discusses language typology and universals from the perspective of language acquisition (Fred Ehrman). The eight papers in the syntax section are of three types. Edith Moravcsik and James Tai discuss general issues of linguistic theory/form. Four papers (Yetish Kid, Michael Bar, Nancy Hadow, Larry Rothlin) address specific analyses and implications from language-particular and theoretical perspectives. The papers by Deborah Dhal and Thomas Riedel focus on theoretical concepts and analyses of natural language processing. In the section on discourse, the contributions by Anita Barry and Amy Sheldon deal with interpersonal conflict; George Yule discusses the selection between direct and indirect speech forms. Helpa Delisle and Cynthia Claman consider a range of issues related to the design and nature of natural language processing. In the section on phonology, the contributions by Daniel Dinnsen and Joseph Stemberger deal with the encoding of linguistic representations and components of linguistic representations. For example, in the other two papers, questions of borrowing are discussed, in Nancy Stenson's contribution from a synchronic perspective, and in Gunter Schaarsmidt's paper from a historical one. The volume is completed by a subject index and a language index.
